Landscape Architects

Young Tree Management

■ Description

Young tree pruning as a management strategy is the foundation for a healthy sustainable urban forest. Our program will review tree selection, A300 tree maintenance standards and new innovative approaches to young tree care.

■ Learning Objectives

After completing this program the participants will be able to:

- Select trees from the nursery with good structure
- Use A300 as a tool for writing tree care specifications
- Understand how to prune young trees

■ How the Program Will Be Taught

The presenters will use PowerPoint for the indoor classroom session. After the basic concepts are reviewed we will move outside into the landscape where we will break up into groups and apply this knowledge.

■ Presenters

Dane Buell — Dane has over 20 years of private commercial arboriculture experience and is an ISA Certified Arborist. He was on the Board of Directors for the ISA Florida Chapter for several years and served on the North Port Tree Advisory Council and the Millennium Tree Project. He is currently on the American National Standards A300 Committee and TCIA Safety Committee. Dane has written notable articles for several industry publications regarding tree preservation and safety, and has appeared on “Martha Stewart Living.” He is also active in presenting tree care topics to the trade through seminars and workshops. Dane is the Director of Safety and Training for SavATree.

Mike Schoeni — Mike has a B.S. in Urban Forestry from the University of Wisconsin/Stevens Point. He is an ISA certified and Connecticut licensed Arborist. He has been with SavATree for 18 years, 12 of which have been as Branch Manager for the Norwalk branch, and most recently promoted to District Manager. Mike has been recognized for his leadership skills by being awarded SavATree’s distinguished “Winner’s Circle” designation. Mike and his team of arborists are charged with stewardship of over 1,300 properties in the Fairfield County vicinity, ranging from modest single-family homes to historic and prestigious properties.
